Belle of Maysville

The most wonderful whisky that ever drove the skeleton from a feast or painted landscapes in the brain of man. It is the mingled souls of wheat and corn. In it you will find the sunshine and the shadow that chased each other over the billowy fields; the breath of June; the carol of the lark; the dew of night; the wealth of summer; and Autumn's rich content—all golden with imprisoned light.

Drink it, and you will hear the voices of men and maidens singing the "Harvest Home" mingled with the laughter of children. Drink it, and you will feel within your blood the star-lit dawns, the dreamy, tawny dusks of many perfect days. For many years this liquid joy has been confined within the happy staves of oak, longing to touch the lips of man.

CHILDREN'S KIDNEYS

No Maysville Mother Should Neglect the Little One's Health.

Often times weak kidneys cause great annoyance and embarrassment to children. Inability to control the kidney secretions, at night or while at play, is attributed to carelessness and too frequently the child is punished. Parents having children troubled with kidney weakness would do well to treat the kidneys with a tested and proven kidney remedy. If there is pain in the back, discolored urine, irregular urination, headaches, dizzy spells or a tired, worn-out feeling, try Doan's Kidney Pills at once. This remedy has been used in kidney troubles for over 50 years and has been recommended by thousands. Convincing proof of merit in the following statement. It's from a resident of this locality.

Mrs. B. M. French, E. Second St., Augusta, Ky., says: "Measles left my children with weak kidneys. The kidney secretions were too frequent in passage and couldn't be controlled at night. Most everything was tried, but without benefit. Doan's Kidney Pills, however, gave the children quick relief."

A SECOND STATEMENT.

OVER THREE YEARS LATER, Mrs. French said: "I am pleased to confirm my former endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. French has twice publicly recommended. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

FAITH IN GREAT BRITAIN'S ABILITY

To Carry Financial Load Is Held By Americans—Idea of England's Resources Given By Henry Davidson When He Returned From London Visit Early Last Year.

New York, July 23.—Six weeks ago Edward D. Adams, who had official figures before him, called attention to the enormous expenditure by England on account of the war, which then aggregated $25,000,000 a day. Much the greater part of this sum, Mr. Adams said, was burned up or eaten up, or in some other way permanently destroyed. In his view of chances were that England instead of reducing this daily cost would be compelled to increase it.

The statement received a day or two ago from London vindicates Mr. Adams' opinion. Thirty millions a day is now the expenditure by England on account of the war, and that, if it is maintained, will equal in the course of a year about one half of England's yearly income.

Stupendous as these figures are they do not cause our own financiers any apprehension lest England before the close of the war will be compelled to confess that she has reached the limit of her resources and credit in funds.

As Division Viewed It

Our own financiers were well informed a year ago of the financial strength of Great Britain. When Henry P. Davidson was in London, in the early months of 1915, he was in conference with English financiers and representatives of the Government, presumably with respect to the contemplated advance by England and France into the United States for the purpose of securing a large loan.

On Mr. Davidson's return he spoke—not in detail, but in a general way—of the magnitude of England's financial resources. No doubt these were by authority made known to him. Probably it was deemed expedient in case England and France sought to procure a large loan (a billion dollars was at first contemplated) that the American financiers should have accurate knowledge of the English resources.

Mr. Davidson upon his return spoke of these resources as something that fairly staggered the imagination. Accustomed as he is to very large figures and to participation in great financing, nevertheless he had never had the experience of that kind before.

Semi-official Confirmation

Now there is semi-official information which confirms the general statement made by Mr. Davidson a year ago. For it is semi-officially announced that the capital wealth of Great Britain is $133,000,000,000 and her yearly income is somewhat in excess of $20,000,000,000.

Dwight Morrow, one of the partners of J. P. Morgan & Co., in speaking of England's resources some months ago, stated that she possessed hundreds of millions, even billions, in securities issued by other nations. In Australia alone England has placed a loan of $600,000,000 secured by certain railroad properties in that great colony. In Hongkong and in India she possesses resources represented by securities of vast magnitude.

It has been a semi-official statement that in the past 30 years England and Germany invested about $4,000,000,000 in the securities of South American nations and South American industries. What part of this $4,000,000,000 represents England's investment in these securities is not accurately known, but the presumption is that the total represents three fourths of the entire investment.

Notwithstanding the enormity of her expenditures, nevertheless England has not touched any of these resources excepting those which are represented by American securities. The reason why England has been utilizing American securities is almost self-evident. The kingdom owes the United States hundreds of millions upon trade balances, and the American securities which are easily absorbed in the United States, have furnished the most convenient means of paying part of these balances.

No Longer Easy to Obtain

It is presumed, however, that England finds it no longer easy to obtain American securities in sufficient amount to pay her obligations in this country, for if that were possible it would not be necessary for her to send gold to the United States. In the financial district it is said that either England has practically exhausted these American securities or else many of the investors in them prefer to keep them. The ease with which the United States has absorbed these securities is spoken of as a most gratifying feature of our financial condition.

Presumably within the next two or three months not far from $200,000,000 in gold will have been received by American consignees either directly from London or by way of Canada. For already a little over $180,000,000 has been received since this movement began.

The infusion of these enormous stores of gold, some $600,000,000 in all since the war began, is having no immediate effect, at least of the kind apprehended—namely, gold inflation with its consequent disturbance of business. For the gold is utilized to pay debts owed to the United States.

If the movement continues, however, for another year there is likely to be some embarrassment due to the lack of facilities for storing it. A million dollars in gold makes, relatively speaking, a small parcel. There is in the assay office of this city a block of gold which measures 11 feet in length, 9 feet in thickness and 9 in height. It does not take up much room, yet it is valued at over $100,000,000, but when so great an amount has $600,000,000 is to be stored in the vaults of the assay office then there must be careful reckoning of space facilities.

The $200,000,000 which was received by J. P. Morgan & Co. on Monday of this week was deposited in the assay office, and it added somewhat to the already great bulk of gold deposited there. It is recalled that when the first consignment of gold from London to J. P. Morgan & Co. came by special train from Halifax, there was a great deal of advertising of this movement of gold, and the consignees did not regard this publicity as worth while. Probably some hint was given of this feeling, because later consignments that have come by special train from Halifax have been unheralded until

HEAT FLASHES, DIZZY, NERVOUS

Mrs. Wynn Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her During Change of Life.

Richmond, Va.—"After taking seven bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I feel like a new woman. I always had a headache during the Change of Life and was also troubled with other bad feelings common at that time—dizzy spells, nervous feelings and heat flashes. Now I am in better health than I ever was and recommend your remedies to all my friends."—Mrs. LENA WYNN, 2812 E. O Street, Richmond, Va.

While Change of Life is a most critical period of a woman's existence, the annoying symptoms which accompany it may be controlled, and normal health restored by the timely use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Such warning symptoms are a sense of suffocation, hot flashes, headaches, backaches, dread of impending evil, timidity, sounds in the ears, palpitation of the heart, sparks before the eyes, irregularities, constipation, variable appetite, weakness and inquietude, and dizziness.

For these abnormal conditions do not fail to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. They were within a few miles of New York.

London is now reported in the financial district to be the dearest money market in the world, while, on the other hand, in view of the vast accumulation of funds, New York is regarded as the cheapest and most favorable money market and likely long to continue to be of that condition.

700 GRAVEYARDS IN GALICIA

(London Chronicle)

Under the caption "More Than 700 Graveyards" the Berliner Vorwaerts recently published an article referring to the battle fields of Galicia and to the efforts being made by the Austria authorities to bring some sort of order into the chaotic conditions prevailing in the military burying grounds scattered over the province.

The writer estimates that between the town of Gorlice and the heights of Tarnovo no fewer than 419 graveyards have been cleared of their unsightly surroundings, and says that wherever possible natural beauties in the landscape have been utilized to lend dignity to the enormous cemeteries.

All along the Dunajec graveyards are thickly strewn over the entire countryside. Russians, Austrians, Germans, Hungarians to the number of 40,000 are buried in the cared-for graveyards, a number of which does not include those buried in masses in one grave. In West Galicia alone about 600 graveyards exist and in other parts more than 100. From the Dunajec eastward the multitudinous graves of the Russians are seen stretching away into the eastern plains, an awful record of the death grapple of last year.

BIG CITIES BEST

(Boston Post)

All Four of July reports are about in and they bring messages of good cheer. Compared with the statistics of even 10 years ago, the figures of fatalities and accidents today are marvelously improved. And nobody arises to suggest that the day has been spoiled. Other attractions than mere noise have proved that they have a right to exist. Civilization is gaining all along the line.

One curious fact is noticeable, and that is that the larger the cities the safer and saner the Fourth. New York, for instance, was this year almost entirely free from the bang of big explosives. Other large places make the same reports. It is in the small cities and towns that license to terrorize and full swing to distract by elsewhere illegal—and sometimes there, as well—noises. The small city does not enforce its own ordinances. The police are too well acquainted with the citizens and wink at violations. The old crazy uproar is fulminated against in the local papers, but never stopped, as it easily could be.

But even in those towns, reason is gradually coming to her own. She does not demand a cessation of good, healthy and sensible noise. But she frowns on outrageous and dangerous manifestations. Some day the latter will all go by the board.

There is a new calendar out that covers twenty centuries, from 100 to 2100. And, incidentally, we hope the war will be over by the time a new one is in demand.
